SAFE-FLO[®]

DID YOU KNOW?

The CDC cautions that backflow from the evacuation line can occur, particularly when patients seal their lips around the saliva ejector. SAFE-FLO one-way valves are designed to stop backflow, preventing the potential cross-contamination risk.

Evacuation Line Health Risk is Real

Clogs or occlusions in evacuation lines can lead to episodes of backflow, where residual oral fluids can flow backward into the mouth—potentially exposing your patients to saliva, blood and other potentially infectious material from previous patients.

According to the CDC, studies have reported that backflow in low-volume suction lines can occur and microorganisms present in the lines can be retracted into the patient's mouth when a seal around the saliva ejector is created or when a length of the suction tubing holding the tip is positioned above the patient's mouth. This backflow can be a potential source of cross-contamination.¹

SAFE-FLO[®] Products Prevent Backflow

SAFE-FLO[®] saliva ejectors and SAFE-FLO one-way valves provide backflow protection to keep your patients safe from evacuation line cross-contamination. There is no need to change how you work in order to eliminate the risk when you use SAFE-FLO products. Choose the all-in-one saliva ejector and valve or add a valve to your favorite saliva ejector or HVE tip. No matter which SAFE-FLO product you choose, you are making the choice to protect your patients from backflow.
